Response Paper: "The Hill We Climb"

In our last class, we discussed the words etched above the west entrance to Norlin Library: "Who knows only his own generation remains forever a child." Amanda Gorman's "The Hill We Climb"  invokes history, legacy, and birthright in its call to usher in a brighter future for the United States and the American Dream.

Describe examples where you see relevance to intergenerational themes and use direct quotes from Gorman's poem to demonstrate them. Describe your reactions to these ideas and how they do or do not fit with your concept of the American Dream. (Tip: consider how Gorman uses elements like homonyms, analogies, history, geography and American symbols.)

(450-500 words; must include personal opinion and reasoning)
